...?

THUD

And just when I started hoping that she might even start talking soon, she fell ill with something unusual. This blow to her health really came out of nowhere.

Res-zurre-san...?

KOFF... UGH...

Her symptoms included fever, spasms, difficulty in breathing, bloodshot eyes, and a distinctive redness on her chest. The exact same symptoms that are caused by a bite of an obsidian spider. Seeing as how she was coughing up blood, I could only assume that someone had given her a slow-acting poison.

UHK... EUH... HAH...

RES-ZURRE-SAN...!!!

See you, Reszurre-chan!

sniff sniff...

Ah... My shoulders are dying.

Counting on you.

crack

I wrote a message to an old friend, hoping that he can help me with Reszurre's limbs. There are many methods of delivery, but the only one I knew how to use is via a messenger crow. As we were spending days waiting for an answer, Reszurre seemed to be slowly regaining her responsiveness.
